DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless:

(e) the invention was described in-

- (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or
- (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

2. Claims 1-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Katinsky et al. (US Patent No. 6,452,609 B1).

Regarding claim 1, Katinsky discloses a media player comprising: a user interface configured to enable a user to interact with the media player to play different types of media [user can exchange play list and player combinations.; see col. 2, lines 31-65]; and a rendering area within the user interface and within which multiple different types of media can be rendered for the user [..the media access webpage has four functional areas, a sequencer, and object player.; see col. 4, lines 7-65].

Art Unit: 2173

Regarding claim 2, Katinsky discloses wherein the media player is configured to render all visual media types that can be rendered by the media player in the rendering area (see col. 5, lines 1-34).

Regarding claims 3 and 4, Katinsky discloses wherein the different types of media comprise video types, animation types, HTML types and skin types (see col. 5, lines 35-67).

Regarding claim 5, Katinsky discloses wherein the different types of media comprise video types, animation types, and -visualization types that can be presented and generally synchronized with audio media that can be played by the media player (see col. 6, lines 1-61).

Claim 6, differs from claim 1 in that "media player comprising: a user interface configured to enable a user to interact with the media player to play different types of media, the different types of media comprising video types, animation types, and visualization types that can be presented and generally synchronized with audio media that can be played by the media player; and a rendering area within the user interface and within which multiple different types of media can be rendered for the user, the media player being configured to render all visual media types that can be rendered by the media player in the rendering area" which set forth to reply on Katinsky (see col. 8, lines 1-60 and figures 6A-8C).

As claims 7-15 are analyzed as previously discussed with respected to claims 1-6 above.

Art Unit: 2173

Regarding claim 16, Katinsky discloses an object model comprising: a base rendering object associated with a rendering area in which multiple different media types can be rendered, the rendering area providing at least a portion of a media player user interface that can be viewed by a user; and multiple different media type rendering objects each of which being associated with a different media type that can be rendered in the rendering area, the different media type rendering objects being configured to render their associated media. (see col. 5, lines 50-67 and figures 2-3).

Regarding claim 17, Katinsky discloses wherein the different media type rendering objects comprise a skin rendering object that is configured to render a skin (see col. 9, lines 13-45).

As claims 18-21 are analyzed as previously discussed with respect to claims 16-17 above.

Regarding claims 22 and 23, Katinsky discloses wherein the different media type rendering objects comprise one or more of: a skin rendering object that is configured to render a skin, a video rendering object that is configured to render video, a audio rendering object that is configured to provide a visualization, a animation rendering object that is configured to render animation, and a HTML rendering object that is configured to render HTML. (see col. 10-11, lines 9-67).

Art Unit: 2173

As claims 24-36 are analyzed as previously discussed with respect to claims 1-6 and 16-17 above.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. (PTO-892).
